PricewaterhouseCoopers Kicks Off Third Annual Month of Community Service

30,000 Partners and Staff Involved in Month-Long Initiative to Develop Future Leaders

NEW YORK, June 11, 2008 – This June, PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP is leveraging the skills and experience of 30,000 partners and staff across the United States to revitalize communities and enhance the development of future leaders during its Month of Community Service. Now in its third year, the annual program is part of a broad commitment by PwC to Corporate Responsibility. PwC's Month of Community Service, which helped an estimated 38,000 children through last year's effort alone, is focused on developing the next generation of leaders by supporting schools and youth organizations.

In the first two years of the Month of Community Service program, PwC contributed more than 140,000 volunteer hours, worth an estimated $10-$15 million in donated time, to nearly 400 community service projects nationwide.

PwC's commitment to Corporate Responsibility extends beyond projects during the month-long community outreach effort. The firm provides all PwC partners and staff with 10 additional hours of paid time off for service within their communities.

"PwC is committed to supporting the communities in which we work and live, and we embrace a philosophy of corporate responsibility through our high impact community service programs," said Shannon Schuyler, Managing Director of Corporate Responsibility for PricewaterhouseCoopers. "We believe we can inspire lasting, transformative change in communities through a focused approach that concentrates our efforts on helping to develop the next generation of leaders."

For this year's month-long initiative, PwC has partnered with a number of organizations dedicated to improving the lives of America's youth and communities including Boys and Girls Clubs, Big Brothers Big Sisters, YMCA, Junior Achievement and Habitat for Humanity, as well as numerous community-based agencies.

A representative sample of Month of Community Service events include:

- Phoenix: PwC employees will participate in Junior Achievement's "BizTown," which encompasses important elements of work readiness, entrepreneurship and financial literacy for students in grades four through six.
- Los Angeles: Implementing a four-week training course at LaConte Middle School in Hollywood, California, PwC employees will collaborate with the children on how to be more environmentally friendly.
- Chicago: Following a morning of refurbishing the Union League Boys & Girls Club site, PwC employees will have direct exposure with the children for an afternoon of mentoring.
- Boston: Teams of volunteers will work to enhance and beautify The Esplanade, one of the oldest parks in the country and a recreation area enjoyed by Bostonians and visitors year round.
- New York: PwC professionals will teach finance and economic concepts to children in grades K-8 as well as participate in projects to revitalize schools and area parks.
- Atlanta: Working with the Boys & Girls Clubs of Metro Atlanta, PwC partners and staff will revitalize club grounds and teach sportsmanship and other crucial life skills to disadvantaged children.
