New rules on Article 21 monthly withholding tax calculation

On 27 December 2023, the government issued regulation No.GR-58¹ regarding Article 21 income tax rate on employment, service, and activity income received by individuals. This regulation is effective starting 1 January 2024 and aims to simplify the monthly withholding tax calculation in relation to the above types of income.

The main rules under this regulation are as follows:

1. Application mechanism for monthly income

GR-58 stipulates that the monthly Article 21 withholding tax calculation for the months of January to November is to be performed using an effective tax rate (“ETR”) and that annual calculation carried out in December is to still be performed using the normal Article 21 progressive income tax rate regulated under Article 17(1)(a) of Income Tax Law. The final tax underpayment will be based on the December recalculation amount minus the tax that has been withheld from January to November.

The ETR under GR-58 is applied on the gross income received by the individual in a particular month without applying any annualisation or deduction on the gross income. This is because the ETR has accounted for the applicable deductions such as non-taxable income, occupational expense, and pension contribution/expense.

2. Classifications of effective tax rates

a. Monthly ETR

The monthly ETR is applied on all income received by an individual on a monthly basis, which is classified based on the marital status and the range of monthly income received.

There are three categories, as follows:

- Category A for individuals with a marital status of:
 - ✓ Single with no dependent (S/0);
 - ✓ Single with one dependent (S/1);

- ✓ Married with no dependent (M/0).
- Category B for individuals with a marital status of:
 - ✓ Single with two dependents (S/2);
 - ✓ Single with three dependents (S/3);
 - ✓ Married with one dependents (M/1);
 - ✓ Married with two dependents (M/2).
- Category C for individuals with a marital status of:
 - ✓ Married with three dependents (M/3).

The applicable monthly ETR for each range of income under each category can be seen in Appendix A.

b. Daily ETR

The daily ETR is applied on income received by a non-permanent employee on a daily/weekly/unit/piece rate basis. If the income is not paid on a daily basis, the tax base on which the daily ETR is applied is the average daily income based on the number of working days.

The applicable daily ETR and daily income range are as follows:

- 0% for daily income up to IDR 450,000;
- 0.5% for daily income above IDR 450,000 up to IDR 2,500,000.

At this stage, GR-58 does not regulate the applicable ETR nor whether the ETR is applicable for daily income above IDR 2,500,000.

Key takeaways

We expect that there will be an amendment of the implementing regulation pertaining to the guidance to calculate the Article 21 income tax due to the changes under GR-58.

Most importantly, the changes brought about by this regulation may alter the usual amount of take-home pay of the employees and may result in a fluctuation of tax under(over)payment in December. This should be carefully communicated to the employees to ensure smooth implementation.
