Recent changes to the tax department leadership in PwC Mongolia

We are pleased to inform you that we have adjusted our tax team to ensure we are fully prepared to offer the best services to our clients in Mongolia

Peter Burnie will be resuming his role as the tax partner overseeing our team in Mongolia. This role has been undertaken by Abdulkhamid Muminov for the last year and we are very appreciative for his support. He will continue to support the team as a partner in the PwC network to ensure complete continuity of service.

Abdulkhamid mentioned that "[Mongolia] has been a great experience for me in many respects – professionally, culturally, and geographically. I am very happy that have had the chance of meeting you and working with you over the past 12 months."

Peter Burnie is the Tax and Legal Services Partner, leading the tax and legal practice in PwC's Eurasia region which includes Mongolia. As such he was involved in the establishment of the Mongolian office and has supported its development for the last 3 years. Peter has more than 20 years of tax consulting experience in a variety of regions across the world including Australia, South East Asia and the CIS.

Throughout his career he has worked with a wide variety of clients, foreign investors as well as regional companies embarking on global expansion. His particular expertise in the extractive industries sector, although he has worked with companies and organisations in all sectors.

Peter holds a Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Laws from the University of Queensland Australia and is a member of the Australian Institute of Chartered Accountants and a Fellow of the Tax Institute of Australia.

Akmal Rustamov has returned to PwC Mongolia's tax team as a senior manager.

Akmal spent a period of several months in 2012 working the tax team in Mongolia and has agreed to return from April. His responsibilities will include building relationships with all of our clients and managing the delivery of tax services to Mongolian and international clients. He brings more than 12 years of international experience to this role.

Akmal previously provided tax-consulting services to a number of international and Mongolian clients on local tax compliance issues, business structuring, tax planning, VAT and customs, withholding tax, investment and other related matters. His home PwC office is in Uzbekistan and he speaks English and Russian fluently.

Prior to joining PricewaterhouseCoopers, Akmal worked for 2 years in the insurance industry.

In 1998 Akmal graduated from the Faculty of Business Management, Tashkent State Technical University, with a bachelor's degree in Finance.
