

BRIEFS

PwC puts faith in Myanmar by opening Yangon office

PricewaterhouseCoopers has opened a Myanmar member firm, bringing the reach of its network in Southeast Asia to nine countries.

PwC Myanmar's new office in Yangon was opened by PwC Singapore executive chairman-designate Yeoh Oon Jin.

He described the company's return to Yangon as a vote of confidence in the reforms that it has witnessed in the past year, and PwC's commitment to the people of Myanmar.

The country has great potential for sustained growth thanks to its unique location adjacent to China, India and Southeast Asia, he said.