PwC Insurance Summit, presented by the Financial Times takes place November 1, 2018

Hamilton, Bermuda – PwC Bermuda is pleased to announce it will host the annual PwC Insurance Summit, presented by the Financial Times on November 1, 2018 at the Hamilton Princess & Beach Club.

The PwC Insurance Summit will bring together over 200 industry leaders, experts, and professionals to discuss trends and strategies to adapt and innovate in the fast evolving insurance and reinsurance market.

After 12 successful years of the PwC S&P Bermuda Reinsurance conference, PwC will now host the Summit as a stand-alone annual industry forum. Its new partner - the Financial Times – is a leading global media brand with a record paying readership of over 910,000.

Arthur Wightman, PwC Bermuda leader, comments: “We are delighted to announce the PwC Insurance Summit. This event will provide a global platform for the Bermuda insurance industry’s leading voices and most influential decision makers.

“According to PwC’s 2018 Global CEO Survey, two-thirds of insurance CEOs report increasing pressure on their organisations to deliver business results under shorter timelines. This at a time when the majority of insurance CEOs report that theirs is one of the most disrupted industries. The pressure for urgent and fundamental change is mounting within companies and across the industry. This is the backdrop to our PwC Insurance Summit.”

Mr Wightman continued: “We are excited to partner with the Financial Times. Recognised internationally for its authority, integrity and accuracy in reporting, the FT’s support and involvement in our event speaks incredibly highly of Bermuda’s reputation as a globally leading, innovative reinsurance centre with an internationally respected regulatory regime.

“Working with the FT will ensure our firm’s significant annual investment in hosting a high-impact Bermuda insurance forum delivers on our brand and business needs and offers attendees a dynamic and engaging format with a distinguished lineup of speakers.”

Toby Saunders, Head of Commercial, Banking & Finance, FTLive, says: “FT Live are pleased to add the PwC Insurance Summit and partner with PwC, one of the top 50 global brands. FT Live oversees an extensive portfolio of industry-leading and thematically stimulating conferences and summits around the globe. FT Live has a reputation for delivering very senior audiences at world class thought-leadership events across the globe and this Summit will be no exception.”

The agenda will focus on innovation and transformation in the insurance industry, including trends in insurtech, blockchain, robotics and AI; opportunities for growth; cyber risk, the evolving nature of risk; alternative capital; US tax reform and more. Panels will be creative and interactive with topics explored in a variety of formats including keynote presentations, interviews, discussions, and audience Q&A, making use of new technologies to enhance engagement.
