Arthur Wightman named to lead PwC in Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda – PwC announced today that Arthur Wightman has been named leader of PwC in Bermuda. Darren Johnston, who previously led PwC in Bermuda, has been appointed to the role of CEO, PricewaterhouseCoopers Caribbean Region Ltd.

“We are pleased to have Arthur assume this leadership role,” Mr Johnston said. “He’ll build on the trusted relationships we have with our clients, people, and the wider community in Bermuda.”

Mr Wightman commented: “I’m proud of the distinctive leadership position PwC has in the Bermuda market. I look forward to building on that with all of our stakeholders. This role brings with it the great privilege of working alongside our exceptionally talented team of PwC professionals who have the right capabilities, foresight and industry knowledge necessary to tackle the issues and opportunities facing our clients. I would like to take this opportunity to publicly acknowledge them all; they represent our success.”

Mr Wightman added, “Our purpose is clear: to help our clients to find solutions to their important problems and to work with them, and our other stakeholders, to build trust in society. These stakeholders include our people and core to my focus will be to continue to attract, nurture, develop and retain the very best talent - to offer all of our people the opportunity of a lifetime. I also look forward to bringing to bear our skills, resources and time in order to make a lasting difference to the wider Bermuda community.”

Mr Wightman will continue to serve as Insurance leader in Bermuda and for PwC operating in the Caribbean, as well as on PwC's global insurance leadership team.

Over the last decade in Bermuda and in London prior to that, Mr Wightman has worked with global public and private companies helping to create the value they are looking for, whether that be in the areas of assurance, strategy, corporate acquisitions and disposals, risk and regulatory management or improving performance.

Mr Wightman is also passionate about fostering the long term success and prosperity of Bermuda and has worked on a number of levels to promote the island as a domicile of choice for the global capital markets.

Mr Wightman said: “In an environment that is constantly changing, PwC is ideally positioned to help our clients to anticipate problems early and to assist them in building the capabilities necessary to thrive. I am very optimistic about the future and am excited about the opportunity to work with my outstanding colleagues to realise our collective goals.”

Mr Wightman chairs and participates in a variety of multi-industry groups engaged in growing Bermuda’s economy. He is a Fellow of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales and a member of the Chartered Professional Accountants of Bermuda. He is regularly featured in sector commentary in international press, participates in industry events and panels in Bermuda and globally, and frequently authors PwC publications.

“I congratulate Arthur on behalf of the firm and wish him well as he and our people continue to deliver value to our clients and our community,” Mr Johnston said.
