NewLaw technology and data analytics services

If your business's compliance and control is achieved through considerable manual effort, we can help you navigate increasingly complex risk and compliance processes and be prepared for the future. It's easy to be overwhelmed by the vast number of legal specific technologies out there. Your team's IT architecture might lack integration, or might be fragmented or outdated. We can help you invest in the right LegalTech and integrate it into your wider ecosystem, uncovering efficiency where you did not know it could exist.

Navigating the fast-moving LegalTech market can be tough. Are you leveraging your current tech stack to its full potential? Do you opt for multiple point solutions or an integrated platform? And what features are 'must-haves'? Our experts help you identify, assess, procure, configure, integrate and embed the most fit-for-purpose legal technologies to improve your legal team's performance - all within your budget envelope and security requirements.

NewLaw managed legal services

Focusing your efforts on more strategic work - our experience shows that up to 30% of in-house lawyers' time is spent on 'non-legal' or lower value work. Partially or wholly outsourcing more standardised and lower-risk activities releases your legal team's time to focus on the work that truly matters. Our managed legal and operations services range from transaction-specific support work to holistic solutions for entire subsets of legal departments. Whether near-shore or offshore, we provide the governance, processes and quality assurance to rapidly embed and operationalise effective outsourcing as a fully scalable turn-key solution.

NewLaw will help develop a modern legal tech ecosystem that can let you do more with the same resources, increase your productivity and speed, spend more time on value-creating activities and, most importantly, better service your company and clients. The first step is often a diagnostic workshop where we can discuss your needs, priorities, challenges and goals.
