Kazakhstan and Hong Kong representatives are planning to hold the first round of negotiations on a double tax treaty to be concluded between two countries from 24 to 28 August 2026.

It is worth noting that the existing double tax treaty between the Republic of Kazakhstan and the Government of the People's Republic of China does not extend to Hong Kong. Currently, Hong Kong is included in Kazakhstan's list of jurisdictions with preferential taxation. This implies that Kazakhstan-source income derived by Hong Kong residents are subject to withholding tax at a rate of 20%.

Conclusion of a double tax treaty would allow taxpayers to benefit from reduced tax rates on cross-border transactions. Before entering into force, the double tax treaty will need to be negotiated, signed, and ratification notes to be exchanged by both contracting jurisdictions.

It is also worth noting that Kazakhstan and Hong Kong already participate in the automatic exchange of financial account information under international tax transparency standards.

We continue monitoring key changes related to international taxation and would be glad to discuss the potential impact of these changes on your business.
