

Wider social engagement

In an era of change and transparency how can we best step up our social strategies?

Stakeholders having some or significant influence on the business strategy

At a time of change companies are seeking to strengthen their relationships not just with traditional media and business stakeholders but also with media and local communities.

