2023 Summer reading list

Reading is to the mind what exercise is to the body

Richard Steele

We are now heading down the home stretch for the year 2023, how well have you kept up with your reading goals for the year?

We know how easy it is to get caught up with work and business and not meet up with our set reading targets but this vacation period offers an opportunity to kick back and catch up on the many unread books in our pile. A few recommendations may suffice here. We asked our Partners in Nigeria to share with us what they are currently reading or planning to read in the next few months.

The books in this maiden summer reading list includes titles across several genres from fiction to business, memoirs, personal development and even parenting. Among them are known titles, classics, bestsellers, and works from new writers. We hope that these book recommendations help reignite your love for books, enable you to discover interesting new titles or simply add some positive vibes to your summer vacation.

List of books by genre

Fiction & Poetry

1984 by George Orwell

Nineteen Eighty-Four is a dystopian social science fiction novel and cautionary tale by English writer George Orwell. It was published on 8 June 1949 by Secker & Warburg as Orwell's ninth and final book completed in his lifetime.

Thematically, it centres on the consequences of totalitarianism, mass surveillance and repressive regimentation of people and behaviours within society.

My Participation: An Autobiography by Bisi Akande

Bisi Akande's book mirrors life and its linear plot structure. It opens with tales of Akande's birth and his tentative steps as a child; it ends with the mournful account of his wife's death and burial with a grieving gathering of friends and foes. Despite its shortcomings, Akande comes across in the book as an excellent, even dangerous, keeper of private and official records.

'Nigeria's Soldiers of Fortune: The Abacha and Obasanjo Years' by Max Siollun

In the cataclysmic decade that is the focus of this book, Nigeria was subject to several near-death experiences. These began when the country nearly tore itself apart after the northern-led military government annulled the results of a 1993 presidential election won by the southerner Moshood Abiola, and ended with former military ruler General Olusegun Obasanjo being the unlikely conduit of democracy.

What Britain did to Nigeria: A Short History of Conquest and Rule by Max Siollun

Max Siollun offers a bold rethink: an unromanticised history, arguing compellingly that colonialism had few benevolent intentions, but many unjust outcomes. Popular narratives often suggest that the economic and political turmoil are homegrown, but the reality is that Britain created many of Nigeria's crises, and has left them behind for Nigerians to resolve.

Outliers: The Story of Success by Malcolm Gladwell

Malcolm Gladwell takes us on an intellectual journey through the world of "outliers"--the best and the brightest, the most famous and the most successful. He asks the question: what makes high-achievers different? His answer is that we pay too much attention to what successful people are like, and too little attention to where they are from: that is, their culture, their family, their generation, and the idiosyncratic experiences of their upbringing.
