Time:

9.00am – 12.15pm

Venue:

PwC Singapore Office
(seminar room)

Objective

To provide beginner to intermediate professionals with an ethical framework and practical know-how to comply with the applicable codes of ethics in carrying out their duties as accountants in their day to day work; and enabling them to meet a critical but often neglected part of their professional requirements.

Who should attend?

Finance Professionals who are interested in understanding ethics and how to handle ethical dilemmas and conflicts.

Benefits of attending

This highly-rated workshop focuses on providing fundamental understanding of ethics and handling ethical dilemmas.

Our practitioner-led instructors, will use real-life examples on some of the ethical, bribery and corruption concerns that a Finance Team may face in their work processes, and how they can be managed.

The course will also cover the basic awareness of Anti-Bribery / Anti-Corruption requirements.

By the end of this workshop, you will learn:

- What are the fundamental principles of the Code of Professional Conduct & Ethics
- The Developments of the Codes of Conduct and status of adoption in Singapore
- The identification of ethical threats - practical scenarios & safeguards
- The application of Ethics to resolve ethical dilemmas & conflicts – Finance Challenges (case studies)

What past participants say:

“Engaging, informative”

“Not as boring as I thought it would be, it was fun”

About the workshop leader

Helmy Tanjanika, B.Acc (Hons), ACA (ICAEW)
Senior Manager
helmy.tanjanika@pwc.com

Helmy started her accountancy career as an external auditor with PricewaterhouseCoopers. She spent the first twelve years of her career, leading audit engagement teams in broad based industries (Customer and Industrial Products, Electronics Manufacturing, Technology, Media & Entertainment) in Singapore and London. Her client base included Singapore-based Foreign Private Issuers, subject to US GAAS and Sarbanes-Oxley Act requirements.

With this extensive experience from her client facing years, she spent the next six years in various internal Risk & Quality roles in Singapore and Jakarta. She supported Risk & Quality Leaders in establishing and monitoring various quality efforts to ensure compliance with the requirements with applicable law and regulations.

Since 2017, she has led the internal Compliance function, supporting the day-to-day monitoring of compliance with ethics and business conduct matters. She continues to be a trainer and facilitator for ethics and business conduct topics, while she takes time each year to facilitate the learning of aspiring professionals for the Singapore Qualification Programme (Assurance module).
