

Much ado about SEC regulations?

With our Company Secretary Service we offer you assistance and expert knowledge, tailored specifically to cover the needs and challenges of public companies. You have access to a number of specialised lawyers who maintain close relations with the relevant supervisory authorities and are therefore in the best position to support you in the application and interpretation of laws and regulations. They can also assist in the administration and execution of annual shareholders' meetings and act as legal counsel during them.

How best to ensure your company's compliance with the SEC and SET small print

In a dynamic business environment, legislation is also undergoing constant change and growing in complexity. Public companies are therefore facing the challenge to comply with the securities laws and regulations while having the need to satisfy stakeholders' and investors' growing interest in legal compliance and risk management.

In addition, the communication of business information is more than a mere obligation. Besides general questions about compliance with the formalities, the what and how of information being made available to management and investors sends out strong signals as to the extent of your organisation's commitment to quality, compliance and good corporate governance.
