Immigration strategy as a part of global business strategy

In order to remain competitive in the global economy, businesses must be able to move people, as the most valuable asset of each company, across borders expeditiously. In view of this, more and more companies worldwide focus on developing effective immigration strategies as a part of their global business strategies.

In the modern world, successful talent management requires smooth immigration solutions, which are both fully compliant with local laws and meet company's global business goals. Being a global network of experienced immigration specialists, we are well-positioned to ensure these needs of our clients.

Rapid development of global economy means new tax challenges for business. It is becoming increasingly common for immigration and tax authorities of countries across the globe to communicate with each other and share information. Thus, in order to meet these challenges, companies must choose immigration solutions, which are reasonable from immigration, as well as tax prospective.

In PwC Legal we assist clients in navigating the international immigration landscape and managing the risks associated with business travels across the world.
