Increasingly families are challenged with finding board members with the appropriate skillsets that are able to meet the increasing demands and responsibilities of the board.

The responsibilities of directors are complex, demanding, and time-consuming. Their agendas are evolving as a result of the rapidly changing business environment and increased stakeholder expectations of boards. Today’s family businesses are faced with many challenges that, if not managed effectively, can threaten their long-term success and viability, including globalization, advancements in technology, changing regulatory and legal requirements, major shifts in markets, big data, and cybersecurity issues, among others. As companies’ strategies change and their business environments evolve, it is imperative that the composition of their boards reflect an appropriate mix of skills, experience, and backgrounds necessary to support the company’s current and future strategies.

Evolving your Family Enterprise Board

Board of Directors made up of Family members only

Board of Directors made up of Family and Management

Board of Directors that adds an independent Director/s

Board of Directors that has majority independent Directors

Board Composition Considerations

Highly effective boards include a mix of directors with the expertise and experience to fulfill their essential oversight roles. Director candidates should have the right skills and experience to add to that mix, as well as other attributes that the board may want to consider. These attributes can change over time – what is important today may not be important tomorrow.

Skills & Experience
Future skills and experience needed for effective oversight of the company’s strategy

Diversity
Diverse board membership to provide better insight into how important constituencies think (e.g. gender, ethnicity, age)

Family
Director candidates that have a connection to the family to preserve the principles and values that play an essential role in the success of the family business

Independence & Tenure
Directors who have no significant or long-standing tie to the company or the family can exercise independent judgement
Our Approach

Evaluating your board composition and refreshing the board is critical to the board’s ability to stay current, effective, and focused on enhancing long-term stakeholder value. PwC can help your board review its makeup in light of the company’s strategic direction, identify the capabilities valuable to the business with the goal of supporting the company’s strategy and transition of generational leadership, and support targeted recruitment of new directors – rather than focusing solely on ‘who you know’ – to infuse the board with fresh perspectives relevant to the company’s future.

1. Assess current board composition
   - Survey collective skills and experience of current directors, including the recency of skills, to determine strengths and weaknesses of the current board
   - Maintain board profiles so director skills are up-to-date

2. Consider ideal board composition
   - Consider optimal board size
   - Identify future skills and experience needed for effective oversight of the company’s longer term strategy
   - Consider other desirable attributes such as diversity (gender, race, age) to complement the current and future management team
   - Incorporate board and management feedback to confirm the ideal board composition

3. Finalize recruitment priorities
   - Assess skills that will be lost through known director transitions
   - Compare ideal and current board composition, as well as known transitions, to identify gaps and opportunities
   - Leverage gaps and opportunities to help target new directors
   - Prioritize desired capabilities to inform director search

4. Support director search to fill key spots
   - Create director profiles based on confirmed recruiting goals and priorities
   - Develop board nomination and recruitment processes and materials
   - Provide slate of board candidates to address gaps and opportunities
   - Conduct initial screenings
   - Support new director orientation for newly elected directors

How we have helped others

Challenge
A client was looking to assess their board member skills and competencies in order to fulfill its duties to carry out the family business’s strategy and growth plans. Upon reviewing the results of its board self-assessment, the client questioned whether its board possessed the competencies and skills necessary to support the company’s current and future strategies.

Approach
Our team conducted stakeholder interviews and facilitated director self-assessments to gain a clear understanding of current board competencies and skills, as well as what the board and management felt they needed in the future. We provided a comparative analysis of board composition against similar organizations, and identified gaps and opportunities with the goal of supporting the client’s growth and evolution.

Benefits
The client obtained a good understanding of its board skills and competencies, to include areas of enhancement to drive them closer to leading practices and support of their strategy & growth plans. This work resulted in clear recruiting priorities for 3-5 year strategic plans, and further clarified the roles and responsibilities of the board to ensure that it was properly focused on the right areas (e.g. risk management, financials) in addition to overseeing strategy and policy.

For more information

Jonathan Flack
US Family Enterprise Services Leader
(615) 503-2866
jonathan.flack@pwc.com

Carin Robinson
Corporate Governance Director
US Family Enterprises
(336) 501-0227
carin.l.robinson@pwc.com

Visit us online at: pwc.com/us/familyenterprises

© 2019 PwC. All rights reserved. PwC refers to the US member firm or one of its subsidiaries or affiliates, and may sometimes refer to the PwC network. Each member firm is a separate legal entity. Please see www.pwc.com/structure for further details.